The possession and consumption of illicit substances are strictly prohibited within the institution and the campus.

d. Crisis Management

A decision, taken after consultation with the competent bodies, will specify the conditions of application of the present article in a crisis situation.

4. Ethics and Rules of Conduct

a. Main principles

The principles of secularism and neutrality prohibit public employees or persons involved in public service missions from manifesting their political convictions or religious beliefs in any conspicuous way. Any act of proselytism or discrimination is also prohibited.

In accordance with Article L952-2 of the Education Code, professors-researchers, teachers, and tenured researchers enjoy full independence and complete freedom of expression in the exercise of their teaching duties and research activities, subject to the limitations imposed by the principles of tolerance and objectivity, in accordance with university traditions.

Users must behave appropriately at all times within the school, as well as in the vicinity of the school and during any event in which they represent the institution (forums, exhibitions, conferences, seminars, etc.).

b. Behavior and attire

The school is a place of study and work. It is, therefore, necessary for everyone to adopt a respectful attitude that promotes a conducive working environment.

Users are expected to dress appropriately and behave with respect for people and property. Cases of disrespectful behavior towards people and property will be referred to the Disciplinary Board, without prejudice to the relevant provisions of the Penal Code.

For reasons of hygiene and safety, users may be required to wear appropriate clothing (hats, walking shoes, etc.) for practical work, certain courses and field placements. The exercise of certain activities, whether in a professional or educational context, may entail risks. The use of personal protective equipment (PPE) ensures adequate protection. PPE must be worn whenever it is compulsory.

c. Sexist, sexual and moral violence

No public employee may be subjected to sexist behaviour, defined as any behaviour related to a person's sex which has the purpose or effect of undermining their dignity or creating an intimidating, hostile, degrading, humiliating or offensive environment (Art. L 131-3 of the General Civil Service Code).

Sexist contempt is the act of "imposing on a person any comment or behavior with sexual or sexist connotations which either violates their dignity by being degrading or humiliating, or creates an intimidating, hostile or offensive situation for them".

No person may be subjected to repeated acts of moral and/or sexual harassment which have the purpose or effect of degrading working conditions likely to infringe their rights and dignity, alter their physical or mental health or compromise their professional future.

No one may be subjected to behaviour aimed at obtaining favours of a sexual nature.

Disciplinary action may be taken against any person who has engaged in, or ordered to be engaged in, sexist contempt. Note that in cases of violence, exhibition, sexual or moral harassment, this penal qualification takes precedence over that of contempt (Art. 621-1 of the French Penal Code).

Harassment is a serious offense, as per Article 222-33-2 of the Penal Code. It can lead to a formal complaint. This complaint is also a serious act; Article 91 of the Criminal Procedure Code specifies the disciplinary and legal risks faced by anyone making a false accusation if the legal proceedings result in a dismissal, as well as the rights of the person wrongly accused.

d. Hazing

In accordance with Article L811-4 of the Education Code, hazing is a criminal offense. Consequently, it is prohibited both within and outside the educational institution. Any acts committed may result in disciplinary and legal sanctions.

e. Freedom of Information and Assembly

Tract distribution is authorized, subject to prior notification to the school management, who may decide to limit it geographically or prohibit it on school premises.

Special requests must be addressed to the ENSG-Géomatique management.

Right to assembly

Outside working or class hours, users wishing to meet (association events, student parties, social gatherings, etc.) must first submit a request to the administration, by completing and signing the two documents provided for this purpose:

- The event description form, which gives a detailed description of the event (see appendix);
- The event protocol, which defines the rules and responsibilities applicable to the event (see appendix).

The request must be received by the administration for consideration at least fifteen days before the date of the event. If this deadline is not met, the event will automatically be banned.

Authorization may be granted subject to certain conditions laid down by the management. Those responsible for the event will be liable for any damage caused during the event.

The right of assembly may concern political, economic, social and cultural issues. Premises are made available either on a permanent basis, or at the request of student or professional organizations.

Room reservations for meetings must respect teaching and research schedules and take place in complete safety, while respecting the integrity of equipment and premises. They may not be used for commercial or promotional purposes, and must respect the principle of secularity.

Respect for intellectual property

Users can obtain reprographic copies of extracts from documents belonging to the IGN documentation center (books and works), as well as printouts of online articles or digital resources. Reprographic copies of documents that are not in the public domain must be reserved for strictly personal or educational use, in compliance with the intellectual property code.

To illustrate or update their courses, teachers, lecturers and researchers, whether permanent or temporary, may use extracts from books or textbooks. Any copies they make of such works must be authorized in advance by the General Resources Department, Planning Department, using the appropriate form (see appendix).

Common spaces and green areas must be respected. On the whole campus, no waste, product or material will be abandoned inside or outside buildings.

In the event of unauthorized dumping, the cost of removal will be borne by the structures or individuals responsible.

The transport of hazardous materials using personal vehicles is forbidden.
